BRITAIN OPENS COLLEGE TO TRAIN SERVANT GIRLS

LONDON, Sept. 5.-England hopes to solve its servant problem by establishing a college for the training of young women in demestic science and the useful arts. The govern-ment has set aside $250,000 for the purpose. The cost of training an unemployed girl so that she can take a situation in domestic service is $100.

The girls are given a course last ing thirteen weeks, with thirty hours instruction every week. They are taught cookery, laundry work, needlework, infant welfare and hygiene. They are also given instruction in singing and plane playing which are considered indispensable adjuncts to the all-around servant who wishes to brighten her mistress life with something more than mere culinary accomplishments or house-hold industry.

LONDON, Sept. 5.- With the Turks still pressing forward on the Anatolian battlefield, driving the Greeks before them, the allied powers intervened today in an effort to end hostilities.

Great Britain, France and Italy are exchanging diplomatic views with the object of arranging an armistice and it is possible that the question of Near East peace will play an important part in the deliberations at the League of Nations meeting at Geneva.

The Turks are menacing Smyrna, seat of Greek great headquarters on the coast, and indications today were that the Greeks will be forced out of Asia Minor entirely within another week unless hostilities end.
The Greek military authorities are already preparing for complete evacuation while the Athens government is appealing to the allied powers for assistance on the ground that their departure would leave the way open for widespread massacres of Greek Christians.
